Project Turnaround and Project Recovery Management

These two are our parade disciplines, which are reflected by various customer references. The majority of projects we've been in the driver seat, are interdisciplinary projects, mostly in international environments with longer running time schedules and without suitable results at the stage we came on board. In such cases we agreed to be in charge of the project responsibility either on behalf of the supplier or the customer and, ensured project implementation with success.

Project Management

Our extensive experience in complex projects is the driver to accomplish state of the art Project Management. The project has to be supported in appropriate manner by the project organization and the management, ideally by using adequate methodical procedures. Our intention is, to use only the parts of a project method necessary and to produce documentation ensuring a smooth implementation and transition to production.

Project Risk Management

Not only existing and known risks have to be managed and tracked by the project management, also potential risks have to be covered as soon as they become visible. An early mitigation is preferred, depending on the rating of the probability of the risk. Our experience in this matter is one of the advantages for our customer.
